OWOSSO HIGH SCHOOL—Main Entrance

Nineteen Hundred Twenty Nine

Published by the
SENIOR CLASS
Owosso High School
Owosso, Michigan

Ded i ~

To Mr. E. A. Cournger, the genial principal of the Owasso High School, our advisor and friend, to whom we have gone for guidance in our projects and help in our difficulties, we, the members of the senior class of 1929, gratefully dedicate this volume of The Spir.

c a t i o n

Foreword

A full education now demands a well balanced training in the practical sciences, physical culture and social problems, as well as the cultivation of the finer talents such as art, music, and literature. Active engagement in school functions affords opportunity for social enjoyment, leadership and personal initiative. The publication of an Annual becomes self-justified since the outside activities are becoming essential in the modern program of education.

The purpose of this Annual is to serve as a tangible, exact reproduction of the activities and events of the Omosso High School, during the past year, as well as to portray the character and achievements of the students enrolled. Having this ultimate purpose in view, the Spic Board of 1929 has endeavored to the best of its ability to make this book one which will be cherished by its readers at present and in after years, with the hope that pleasant school day memories will be perpetuated through its printed pages. —Editor

Shiawasse River

"And all the dim rich city, roof by roof,
Tower after tower, spire beyond spire,
By grove, and garden-lawn and rushing brook,
Climbs to the mighty hall that Merlin built."
—Idylls of the King.

Campus

"It was my duty to have loved the highest;
It surely was my profit had I known;
It surely would have been my pleasure had I seen.
We needs must love the highest when we see it."
—Idylls of the King.

Armory

"My younger knights, new made, in whom your flower
Waits to be solid fruit of golden deeds,
Move with me toward their quelling, which achieved,
The loveliest ways are safe from shore to shore."

—Idylls of the King.

Conservation Club House

"Camelot, a city of shadowy palaces
And stately, rich in emblem and the work
Of ancient kings who did their days in stone;
Which Merlin's hand, tipt with lessening peak
And pinnacle."

—Idylls of the King.

JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

In Memoriam

James Oliver Curwood was born in Owosso in 1878, and made his home here throughout his life. His world-wide fame as an author has placed him high among the illustrious alumni of Owosso High School.

The chateau, where much of Mr. Curwood's writing was done, is picturesquely situated on the banks of the Shiawassee, symbol of the author's love for his native city. Speaking of Owosso, he once said, "I think it is the nicest place in the world. I was born there and I hope to die there."

Mr. Curwood's notable career was cut short by his untimely death in 1927.

Board of Education

Mrs. H. Manahan
President

Back of every educational system which functions for the benefit of the public lies a guiding and planning force: The Board of Education. The erection of a new high school, together with the enlarging of the athletic facilities, has added extra burdens and special duties to the work of the Owosso School Board.

The members of the Board have worked with keen interest and untiring efforts in order to give Owosso an up-to-date educational school system of which all may be proud. To them should go the credit for the many accomplishments which have been gained in the public school system during the past few years.

Superintendent

Although the High School is largely guided and controlled by the School Board, the Superintendent is the one who applies and enforces the orders as planned by the Board. Mr. Willman's work lies largely in the field of investigating school administration problems as handled in other schools, receiving teachers' applications, and with the help of the financial clerk, to sponsor the financing of the whole city school system.

To the Superintendent and his assistants is due the credit for the high standard which has been created in Owosso.

Principal

The problems that confront the principal of a high school are numerous, and sometimes more serious than we realize.

Owosso has been very fortunate for the past four years in having one who has met these administrative problems and successfully managed them. He has tried to instill in the minds of the students the correct way that a high school should conduct itself and has done more than anyone else to bring this school up from a low average to one of high standards, in both moral and scholastic phases.

To the principal's assistant, Miss Noonon, the High School stenographer, is due much credit for the work accomplished in this department of school administration.

Social Sciences

It is recognized that the teaching of the social sciences is a difficult task. This is due (1) to constant changes and adjustments in these fields, and (2) a scientific age like ours has frequently shown an indifference for the study of past and present governments of social conditions. Yet, there are no other subjects of more vital importance to our nation. profession or life's activity one may enter upon the A lawyer, doctor, teacher, business man, or whatever government promotes, through beneficial legislation, all activities. Wherever one may travel the government is looked to for protection. The citizens of America are the government. It is a democracy. To maintain it requires that all people must intelligently practice democracy.

Science Department

Science explains our surroundings. The High School Science Department seeks to do this thru the four courses which it offers.

General Science is exploratory and introduces the student to the general field of science.

Biology explains our contacts with the plant and animal world, and gives us an appreciation of the importance of the living things we meet each day.

Chemistry and Physics are studies of the theories and applications which make possible the manufacture and use of practically all our present day necessities and luxuries.

Commercial Department

There are three teachers in the commercial department: Mrs. Marie Weatherby, Miss Frances Goodes, and Mr. Lawrence Alto, who came during the second semester to fill the vacancy left by Mr. George Menkee. Courses are offered in typing, stenography, bookkeeping, commercial law, commercial geography, junior training, and commercial arithmetic. The majority of the students in this department take a complete commercial course which includes these subjects and certain required academic subjects. Most of them do not plan to go to college, but expect to enter office positions on graduation from high school. This department sends representatives each year to the district and state shorthand and typing contests held at St. Johns and Kalamazoo. There are about three hundred and fifty students enrolled in the commercial department.

Mathematics

In order to assist in the bringing about a fuller appreciation and a clever understanding of life and the progress of civilization, we seek, in the Mathematics Course offered, to develop in the individual those essential powers of understanding and analysis of space and quantity relationships; to aid the acquiring of skill of using the results of analysis to draw valid conclusions; and finally, to foster those habits of thinking that will enable the above attainments to become effective in the life of the student.

A complete high school course in Mathematics is offered through this department of the Owosso High School.

The cooking department carried out its work on the meal-plan basis. Foods suitable for a breakfast such as fruit, cereals, hot breads, and hot drinks were prepared. The class was divided into "family" groups, and each family in turn planned a breakfast which was to them by the others. Then foods suitable for luncheons and dinners were prepared. These meals were planned and served just as the breakfasts had been.

The sewing classes have made great progress along lines of home economics. Besides the study of fibers, and the making of articles and garments, they entered several contests. There was a contest for dressing dolls for which three prizes were given.

Agricultural Department

Agriculture is one of our basic industries. It is also our largest industry, comprising one-twelfth of our national resources. The tillers of the soil together with all the related industries have gone far in building a moral fiber and a staunch resourcefulness into our community, state, and nation.

Agriculture is both a science and an art, and as such is taught in the Owosso High School under the Smith Hughes Law. The agricultural course consists of four years work in study, laboratory, and field practice. Judging teams are sent to state contests annually.

Vocational Arts

Four semesters of mechanical drawing are offered at present, correlated with shop work. The main purpose of this course is to train the student in the fundamentals of the graphic language. The ability to use triangles; T square and scale; to distinguish between visible and hidden edges; necessity of showing three views of an object; use of inking pens; inking lines in proper order; using tracing paper and making blue prints and ability to read blue prints; and make free hand sketches in correct proportion, are a few of the fundamentals taught in this course.

In the General Art course offered we strive to develop finer tastes in the buyers of the future. Art education should be carried on not only for the sake of art, but to make American education complete by developing the whole personality of every individual.

We buy art, not only the silk fabrics and jewelry that catch the eye of those who pass, but also painting, sculpture and architecture with very little if any intelligence about the subject.

Since the High School students are to be consumers of the future, it should be the aim of art education to give those students some intelligent background for meeting the problems they are surely to encounter.

We strive to develop finer tastes in order that buyers of the future will be able to purchase products of the various trades to a better advantage.

Because of the fact that every pupil is required to take three years of English, this department is the largest in the school with five full time and one part time teacher. In the first two years emphasis is laid upon functional grammar, punctuation, oral English, and composition. The third year is devoted to the study of English literature, and in the fourth year two courses are offered. The first is a semester of American literature. The second is a review of rhetoric which is of special value to those students who expect to go to college. The English department also sponsors the annual oratorical and declamatory contests.

Language Department

The Language Department strives to promote better self-expression. Words are more realistic when the root meaning can be felt in them. Since approximately sixty percent of our English words have a Latin origin, there is ample opportunity for this "feeling for a word," this sentence and language sense which precision of thought demands.

In French, the opportunity to study the life and culture of a foreign nation furnishes ample incentive for mastering the subject. To develop an appreciation for another and older civilization, to study their ways and their meaning, offers abundant opportunity to cultivate the "international mind."

Physical Education

The purpose of Physical Education is to provide students with an opportunity to develop the physical side of life. But while strength of body and fleetness of foot are admirable traits in anyone, the aim of modern physical education now includes mental stimulation and character training. The former shows itself in the cultivation of such habits as keenness of perception, directness of thought, and correctness of judgement. The latter promotes such attitudes as modesty in the winner, resolve in the loser, self control in the strong, and courage in the timid.

The facilities for physical education in Owosso High School have in the past been both inconvenient and meagre. But the future holds forth great hope. With a wonderful new high school, including a fine gymnasium now at hand, the opportunity for a real program in physical training is now assured.

Agricultural Double Quartette

Music Department

The music department has shown some progress in all the organizations.

The most noticeable progress has been in the Boys' Double Quartette. The boys have made several public appearances and have left a very good impression in the minds of both students and public. They have studied many difficult selections and entered the state contest in Mt. Pleasant.

The band has made some progress although they did not put on a concert or enter the contest. They made several public appearances, however.

The first activity of the Owosso Teachers' Club for the current year was the annual pot-luck supper held in the dining room of the Central School, September twentieth. The event was as usual most enjoyable, old friends renewing acquaintanceship, and new teachers being welcomed into the teaching force of Owosso. After the supper, the club proceeded to election of officers. Wendell Herron was made president, Harold Plichta, vice-president, and Nina M. Howard, secretary and treasurer.

In February the Club united with the P. T. A.'s of the city in bringing before the people of Owosso, Professor Brumm of the University of Michigan, whose inspiring address was so well received.

Senior Class History

As the tiny grains of sand in the hour glass sift swiftly to the bottom, so have we progressed from one class to another until we have completed our busy, yet delightful, career as high school students. As Seniors of the Class of '29, we feel joyously proud that we, like grains in the hour glass, have made every day count towards a definite end.

Our first officers were: Wayne Huber, president; Estella Jilson, vice-president; Kenneth Elliott, treasurer; and Juanita Loynes, secretary.

At the beginning of the second semester, the officers elected were as follows: Arthur Wendt, President; Virginia Friegel, Vice-President; Hugh Hicks, Treasurer. We chose Miss Schipper to be our advisor. Our colors were lavender and white; our flower, the white rose; and our motto, "Facta Non Verba".

When we became sophomores, we intended to make our work count more than ever. We elected Howard Doran, President; Janet Driscoll, Vice-President; Luke Murray, Treasurer; Eleanor Douglas, Secretary. On the resignation of Howard Doran we elected Leonard Glander, President.

The following fall we entered as juniors. Our officers for the year were Hugh Hicks, President; Helen Orth, Vice-President; Leonard Glanders, Treasurer; Maxine Rust, Secretary. Mr. Trythall was chosen to be our advisor.

We held many "all class" parties and we also ordered our class rings which will be standard from henceforth.

All our interest from then on was concentrated on the Junior Play, "White Collars". Miss Margaret Lord helped to make it a great success. Virginia Friegel and Kenneth Campbell taking the leading roles made it the talk of the year.

June came and we began making preparations for the Senior-Junior banquet. Directed by Mr. Trythall we quite transformed the place into a spring garden, and our guests seemed quite delighted.

We now had one more year,—the one that would stand out in golden letters in our history. Our officers were Charles Wilkins, President; Ellen Allmandinger, Vice-President; Ruth Loomis, Secretary; Kenneth Clark, Treasurer; and we elected Mr. Courmyer as class advisor.

"So This Is London" was staged at the Capitol Theatre under the capable direction of Miss Grace Renwick. Jane Rayen and Howard Coy played the leads but it remained for Jack Ellis and Ed Hahn to provoke the mirth for the evening.

After months of hard work an assembly was called March 5 to convince the students that they should own one of the 1929 "Spics".

During the year we held several class parties including a pre-Prom party but the crowning event overshadowed them all. The Senior Prom has become a tradition in the Owosso High School and is the most elaborate social event of the year. The Armory was cleverly converted into a scene of beauty simulating a Dutch village.

As the Class of '29, we are the last Seniors to attend this high school building. So on April 19 we had the honor of being present at the laying of the corner stone of the new high school.

It has all seemed too swift, as if lasting but the hour, yet it has been filled with so many priceless experiences that we cannot feel sorry, for now we have something even bigger to look forward to—our future.

Thus, as we leave, we wish the greatest of success to all the classes to come and will hold always in our hearts the motto: "Facta Non Verba".

—Jane Rayen.

Friends and Classmates:

We, the Senior class of 1929, are participating in one of the greatest events of our lives at this, our graduation time. It is a significant occasion for us. It marks the attainment of a goal long visioned and long anticipated. This Commencement is our reward at the close of four years of effort—a four years in which work and play have been so combined as to make them the most enjoyable years we have ever experienced. Now that this momentous epoch of our lives is fast drawing to a close, we can take the time to look back over our high school days and see just how much we have progressed and accomplished. We have not been instructed merely in the fundamentals of learning. Our education has been so much more complete than this. We have been taught the fundamentals of character, honor, truth—all things enduring and worth while. During these last few years our characters have been in the building. Now at the close of this formative period of our lives they are fairly well established, so that what we are today determines largely what we shall be tomorrow.

Looking toward the future we experience a slight feeling of apprehension at what life may hold in store for us. The place that we have now reached is one of such great importance—so much depends upon our decisions made at this time. In the past the way has been smooth, and well defined. Loving hands have guided and directed us over the rougher spots. But now—now we must depend upon our own resources, we must choose our own path now that we have reached the crossroads and choose it carefully and thoughtfully. Even the most inviting-looking way will have its rough uncharted spots where no guiding hand will direct us. But it is just at these difficult places that the training of the past four years will help us and make it possible for us to overcome them.

And so, now that we have reached that place in our lives where our paths diverge, where each shall pursue his own individual goal, and the time has come to bid farewell to one another, we can do so, although regretful of the parting, with high hopes for the future, knowing as we do, that his can be none but success who follows his chosen path with courage, determination, high ideals, and hope springing eternal in his heart.

Salutatory

Classmates and Friends:

This occasion that we are celebrating here today is the greatest event in our four years of high school life. Let me bid you welcome, parents, teachers, and friends, to help us celebrate the day which means so much to us.

During these four years, we have climbed step by step until now we stand triumphantly upon the summit. The path thus far has not been a difficult one, thanks to our parents, teachers, and loyal friends. When by chance we came to some curve, or hesitated because we were too weary to climb further, our parents gently urged us onward and we were constantly backed by our teachers.

Annabelle Ward

We have reached the first stepping stone in our journey of life and now we stand with packs fastened upon our backs, eager, hopeful, yet fearful to venture further. We look and what do we see? Sharp stones, a thorny untraveled path meets our eyes, and on our way lies the "Slough of Despond," and "appollyon" must be overcome. This time we must travel alone unaided by our parents and teachers whom we can never repay for what they have done for us.

Although there is some sorrow in our hearts today as we gather here within this building for the last time, and the thoughts of parting with our friends fill us with pangs of regret, yet as we journey onward we shall carry away with us pleasant memories of the days spent in this old high school and we shall treasure them in our hearts.

During these four years we have been building character and we have tried to build a character that will withstand the hard knocks and sorrows of life.

As we turn to wave farewell to our friends, with the true spirit of the Blue and Gold, let us courageously go forward, and as we struggle along that hard, uneven path, let us remember that:

"No race is over, till the last yard's run,
No game is ever lost—until its won,
A fire is never dead while the ashes are still red,
Nor the sunset in the skies until the day is done."

Again I welcome you in behalf of the Class of 1929 and invite you to join with us in celebrating this day.

Class Prophecy

By Donald W. Hart

Imagine my surprise when, in the Public Library on June 4, 1940, I glanced at a New York paper (edited, by the way, by Virginia Wietzke), and looked in the book review column which was being conducted by Filbert Hartshorn, to see that my latest mystery story, "Who Stole the Elephant's Peanuts?", was being considered as a good story to turn into a photoplay.

I was, previous to this moment, engrossed in the book I had taken from the science shelf. It was written by that eminent scientist, Kenneth Clark, and in it he endeavored to prove the startling theory that silence is the death of conversation. When the book was finished, I laid it aside, convinced that Clark and Einstein were both pretty good scientists. The idea that only twelve men in the world, by the way, can understand Einstein's theory is no longer grounded. Charles Wilkins made it thirteen.

There was a lot of news in that paper, especially in the society column. In the first place Leonard Glanders and Eleanor Parker had copped a cup for being the best dancers in the country and had been awarded a place in Arnold Saska's Follies. A little farther down in the column Belva Day married Willy Knight, and they were going honey-spooning in a specially made Coy flivver. I got down to where the two Coy brothers, Ed and Bob, had eloped with the Spiess twins when I was interrupted by an Eastern Union boy and was handed an envelope on which I noticed the manager's name. It was Eugene Bonsor, manager of the telegraph company, I mean.

The note was from Hollywood from the noted picture producers, Milton Kaufman and Dale Haughton, directing me to come to their offices immediately to sign a contract giving them sole rights to my story. Always obedient to the whims of the great, I hired a plane from the Silverman Flying Field, and with Hugh Hicks as the capable pilot, we struck out for the city of dreams.

In the office of the producers I met again the greatest picture director of all times, William May. Together, in our high school days, we had built dreams of the future. And now he had started a company to produce pictures for Kaufman and Haughton. He featured the great actors, Virginia Friegel, who was the principal reason for Greta Garbo's departure for Europe, and Ralph Dickie. These two were supported by an able cast. They were Kenneth Campbell, Zona Amos, Joe Patrick, Helen Orth, Oreno Osborn, Charles Parvin, Betty Finch, and Don Link.

Jack Ellis, who was the proprietor of his father-in-law's big clothing store, was selected to get the materials for the wardrobe. Murlin Dynes and Eleanor Douglas were employed as designers. Earl Campbell was to furnish the jewels for the heroines. Frank Warren was to paint all the scenery with the help of Ruth Van Pelt and Albertine Wilcox.

The picture was to be a talkie and soundie and the musical score (called the squeakie) was to be rendered by Earl Skinner and his orchestra. Earl had always been an ardent admirer of Susan—pardon my typewriter, it meant Sousa—and had made his way to the top of the musical world. His orchestra consisted of Harold Phillips, Clifford Mallery, A. J. Kline, Kenneth Jackson, and Alex Dreuth, with vocal score rendered by Lyle

Hodges, when a song was required, and Charles Williams, when music was required. Doubles and understudies were Jewel Benham, Dorothy Kline, Rita Miller, Alice Mead, Robert Watts, and Arthur Wendt.

Well, the picture was completed and started on its tour of the cities. Aside from its lack of box-office receipts, talent, and capable direction, it turned out to be a big success—more big than success. Anyway, it was shown in the famous Hersher-Hilgendorf chain of theatres to a select group of notables. There was Leora Martin, the famous actress who played in Karl Josenhans' Drugged Nights. There was Basil Tunnacliff who made a fortune proposing to a girl. It seems he got on his knees to propose to her and she threw him a roll of bills, saying it was amusement tax, or something like that. And then, of course, there was Lois Kirn and Ruth Hoshield who started in the fox fur business. They became discouraged and quit when they found that skinning a fox more than three times for his fur might cause the animal to become distempered and bite. And we mustn't forget Agnes and Dora Noonon who made the discovery that if all the cigarette boxes used by students in one year were piled one on top of the other they would soon fall over.

When the show ended that first night—all shows end sometime—I passed out of the theatre and crashed headlong into Kenneth Walker. He, by the way, is director of famous correspondence school. One of its favorite advertisements runs something like this: "Learn swimming by correspondence at home in your own bath tub."

He introduced me to his companion, Russell Reed who is the husband of Annabelle Ward. Of course you remember Annabelle who won a beautiful cup for having an all "A" average in the old high school days, but later gave it away because her husband was using it for other than display purposes. Warren Britten has developed into quite a writer since I saw him last. In fact he wrote all the menus for the Sugar Bowl and Cream Pitcher. He invited me to a restaurant where we proceeded to talk over things. We didn't talk over many things, though, because there was nothing but a bare table before us.

It was a swell restaurant. Too swell, I thought. You even had to have an extra swell in your pocket book to look at their menu. It was one of those dainty places where they fill the tea cups with eye droppers and can serve you a one dollar dinner on the sharp end of a tooth pick. I found out that Laverna Nelson and Elizabeth Smithgall were the proprietors. Thelma and Margaret Herndon were the waitresses who brought out graham cookies and milk to us, and when William Morency and his orchestra started their night disturbance with Evelyn Wallace as the featured dancer in Arabian custom, it made you feel that after all there really was no place like home.

Don Hughes and Patty Hume ambled in and took seats a little ways from us. Warren told me that these two new-comers were formerly singers in Vaudeville, but since tune came in style they had been out of a job.

He told me, also, that women had recently taken their places in industry. Dorothea Snider and Arlene Post were creators of the world's cheapest automobiles. They even had nickle radiators.

Well, the Class of Twenty-nine is not without its great men. While we sat peacefully there at the table Clarence Van Brocklin, all agitated and excited, came over to our table and spoke to us.

"I've just found out that I've been elected President", he said.

"Of what?", Warren asked him.

"Oh, I haven't found out yet", was the reply.

Frances and Charlena Beebe and Mildred Baker are all instructors in the gentle art of toe-scraping, which someone has misnamed dancing. Wayne Colby and LeValley Brockway operate the Banquet Hot Dag stand. It's really pot-luck, though, because you have to bring something in order to eat—at least a dime. These four girls: Rose Sasek, Jane Rayen, Jeanette Pillans, and Margaret Pearce, are hostesses in Maxine Rust's night club. Louise Orser is part owner of the Sunshine Raincoat Co. Josephine Millis is the other part. Phoebe Manhart is a fervent lecturer in the movement to prohibit woman suffrage. She thinks they suffer enough now without a law to encourage it. Nelson Babcock has invented a new kind of cleat for mosquito's feet, so they can scratch the swellings they leave when they sting.

Irene Helt is the world's busiest woman. She is busy now trying to find time to rest. Florence Sutter has invented a new way to sign checks. Her method consists of three steps: (1) Take name. (2) Place check directly under name. (3) Press name firmly down on check. Celia Hanna has invented a good shock absorber for dollar watches. Ralph Schuster follows the medical profession—he's an undertaker. Robert Scofield and Howard Shanafelt are in a very dead business. They, also, are undertakers. Charles Guernsey has asked the question: "When a fellow takes a girl to the theatre, to dinner, to dance, and uses a taxi to take her home, should he kiss her?" Norman Maurer answers him: "No. By that time he has done enough for her."

Helen Jones, Dorothy Hayes, Phoebe Harrison, Muriel Green, Lucille Johnson and Grace Giffei have organized an anti-humane society. The two things wrong with humanity, they claim, are men and women.

Eleanor Lahman, Ruth Loomis, Eloise Dimmick and Jaunita Loynes are all women barbers. Shaving is absolutely painless or whiskers cheerfully refunded. Good price for moustaches with a Spanish twist.

Maxine McIntyre is running a taxi service for boys only. Lillian Shapiro is her chief assistant. Lloyd Walker is a famous economist. When a tramp asked if he might cut the grass for a meal, Mr. Walker politely told him he could eat it right off the ground if he wished.

Helen Cardwell says the best way to grow tall is to drink milk. Vera Sutton asks, "How about condensed milk?"

Jeanette Driscoll and Jeanette Detwiler, Mary Louise and Muriel Cook, have organized a society for the promotion of bachelors' interests. (Glad someone is interested enough to see that bachelors are treated right). Ona Potter and Margaret Ward own a trust company. They sell things on credit, then trust to luck. Howard Doran, the sensational physicist, has been endeavoring to prove that nothing is the total absence of something.

Extra! Extra! Ellen Almendinger, the Vice President of the old Class of '29 has just been married!

Junior Class History

The poor Freshmen always get the wrong end of the bargain and we certainly got our share, yet we came through with flying colors. Of course to be a class at all, we had to have officers, so according to customs, they were duly elected. They were: President, Kenneth Campbell; Vice-president, Phoebe Harrison; Secretary, Leora Martin; and Treasurer, Mike Mansor.

All classes have to be labeled as to colors and so forth, so at our next meeting we chose blue and white for our colors, and the sweet-pea as our flower, and after a long discussion, decided that our motto should be, "Always Ready."

Our only social event for that year was a "hard time" party.

We felt much more at home as Sophomores and on our own initiative held a meeting to elect class officers. The meeting itself was nothing unusual but the following turned out to be very efficient. Chester Green, President; Hugh Stuart, Vice-president; Thelma Glander, Secretary; and Dorothy Goodrich, Treasurer.

We were very busy people and the year was packed full of so many things to do that it seemed June before we could get our breath.

It was hard to get started in the fall, but once on our way we certainly generated pep. We held our first class meeting September 23, and elected Gordon Van Pelt, President; Robert Cook, Vice-president; Rhea Crandall, Secretary; Vivian Reed, Treasurer; and Mr. Haupt as our advisor. We certainly felt so sophisticated as Juniors and were ready for an eventful and joyous year. But first of all a class has to have finances to progress so we organized to campaign for dues.

We soon became anxious to identify ourselves, so November 7, we called a meeting to order our class rings. This is a big event for a Junior for it is then that he becomes ranked as an "upper classman" and that sounds so grown-up.

After exams we drew another breath and began to look forward to events in the second semester which was one ever to be remembered. At the beginning of March, we were all very excited. Why shouldn't we be? Weren't we going to try out for our Junior play? Why we were even tickled to death because the Seniors were so interested in it and seemed to look on enviously. For days we frantically watched the bulletin board for the results. And then the day came! The parts fitted perfectly.

The cast worked long and hard under the able direction of Miss Renwick, and on May 15 "Tilly of Bloomsbury" was presented at the Capitol. Dorothy Goodrich and Hugh Stewart took the leads beautifully and the play was a great success. Another point for the Juniors.

The crowning event of the year took place in June! The annual Junior-Senior Banquet. It was cleverly worked out, and we did our best to give our guests a royal send-off.

Sophomore Class History

Of course, we have outgrown those childish years, yet as we look back we remember entering, green and innocent, as Freshmen in the September of '27. It gave us quite a thrill to come up in the assembly room and know that some day our names would be engraved on the desks in the rear of the assembly room. We did not do anything as a class until someone hinted that it was the accustomed thing to elect class officers. Our meeting was held November 14, 1927, and we were taken care of by Miss Tubbs. The election results proved very satisfying and with our worthy President, William Seegmiller; Vice President, Max Wright; Treasurer, Mildred Loomis, and Secretary, Marjorie Young, we expected to do great things as Freshmen.

They did not have a chance to exercise their office until December 6, when our second class meeting was held and Miss Bussy was unanimously chosen our advisor. Later we chose our class colors as old rose and gray and our motto, "Loyal to Duty". Miss Bussy thought we were not experienced enough to throw a big all-call party, so we were exclusive and held strictly a class party.

The teachers kept us busy with nine hours until June.

When September rolled around we could "lord" it over the Freshmen and felt very important to be able to take part in initiating them into the ways of the high school.

We intended to make this a very busy year so that the name Sophomore would appear in the limelight. Hence, we started with a class meeting September 16 to elect officers. The election returns were: President, Duane Beebe; Vice President, Lawrence Snider; Theasurer, Geraldine Ferris, and Secretary, Josephine Cooper; and it was with these officers and the co-operation of the class that we completed such a successful year.

On October 7, we held our first social event of the year; a wiener roast at Henderson Grove. It was lots of fun and got us all pepped up for an all class party. You see we could have one now that we were Sophomores.

The party was held at the Emerson and everyone admitted that we knew how to have a party even though we weren't experienced.

We were all so busy after Christmas with examinations and the entering of the mid-year Freshmen that we did not realize how fast the time was flying until someone suggested another party.

The week-end before Spring Vacation we held it. Did you say successful? And how!

About this point in the season we had to give way to Senior activities so we left the picture, to return the following fall as full-fledged Juniors.

After a year of concentrated planning and effort, of striving for a material, pleasant school-day reminder, with technical difficulties overcome, we render to you—students, faculty, and friends—the 1929 Spic. It is our hope that this year book worthily reflects a spirit of the school, an appreciation of the privilege of working and playing together in this atmosphere of beauty. In the 1929 Annual an effort has been made to preserve for all time those delightful memories which have made this year a never-to-be-forgotten period of our lives.

Each year has found a year book with a more comprehensive, a more elaborate representation of student life and activity. As the school has grown, so has the Annual, and this year's edition is but the culmination, the outgrowth of the development of the institution itself.

This book could not have been produced without the willing co-operation of each staff member, assisted by the ready aid and pertinent suggestions of Mr Braun, our advisor. Others worthy of due acknowledgement for their services are Mrs. Gebhart and Miss Renwick, proof readers; Louise Orser and Eleanor Young, typists.

All in all, working harmoniously together, we have attempted to produce a book of modern times, yet tinged with the quaintness and charm of the medieval period.

The Owassonian

The "Owassonian," the official, bi-monthly news publication of the high school, is now three years old. Though still in its infancy, the gradual improvement in size and quality which has been made each year is encouraging. The editorial work has been excellent, the credit for which is due to the efforts of the Editor-in-Chief, Virginia Wietzke, and her two capable associates, Florence Lorenz and Bernice Roe.

Several marked changes have been made in the make-up of the paper during the past year. One of the most outstanding of these is the use of Old English type in the headings, which makes a decided improvement in the physical appearance of the pages. The Old English theme was also employed throughout the paper in cuts used for column heads.

Two new columns were introduced by members of the 1928-29 staff. "Have Ye Ever", a column devoted to reviews and criticisms of the better books and plays, was very creditably conducted by its editor, Filbert Hartshorn. The other column, "What Not", consisted of various items of interest and humor. indicates. This was edited by Margaret Vandemark.

The business department, always important to the success of a news paper, was headed by William May this year. Though seriously handicapped in the past, plans for a better business organization for the future are under way. Better facilities afforded by the new high school building will be of particular benefit to this branch of the paper. Mr. Hood has recently undertaken the task of sponsoring this department.

The cartoons, comic strips and illustrations drawn by Frank Warren and "Mike" Mansor, staff artists, have contributed in a very definite way to the improvement of the "Owassonian".

A number of staff members attended a Press Conference at Pontiac in February where Professor Grant Maynard Hyde of the University of Wisconsin, nationally known authority on journalistic writing was the main speaker. About twenty schools of southeastern Michigan were represented at this conference, which will be an annual affair hereafter.

The reporters were: Betty Finch, Bernice Fritsch, Jeannette Detwiler, Thelma Glander, Eleanor Lahman, Hugh Hicks, Lois Kirn, Arthur Cronkhite, Helen Orth, James Miner, Harry Northway, Jane Rayen, and Dorothy Walter.

All members of the staff have contributed to the success of the paper throughout the year, but their efforts would have been of little avail had it not been for the excellent advisory work done by Miss Woodard.

Debating Team

The question for debate this year was, "Resolved that a Federal subsidy for the development of an American Merchant Marine would be a wise National policy".

The negative debating team of the Owosso High School was composed of Muriel Green, James Miner, and Lucille Jackson.

Their first debate was with Flint, and they did exceptionally well for inexperienced debaters and after a hard battle yielded to the decision of 2-1 in favor of Flint.

Arthur Hill debated the Owosso Negative Debating team and won with a 2-1 decision.

The Affirmative team met Bay City Central and yielded to a one man decision. It was composed of Muriel Green, Eleanor Young and James Miner.

The team lost the last debate of the season to St. Johns with a 2-1 decision although they put up the best fight of the year.

The High School Agricultural Double Quartette was started two years ago, when four high school boys thought that it would be valuable training, and help them if they could have one day a week for practice. This was started and grew from a single to a double quartette last year. They were trained by Mr. W. R. Champion, and sang at many public gatherings.

This year, with but two changes from the group of last year, the boys started studying much more difficult music, and have improved very much under the direction of Mr. Johnson. They have made several public appearances, and have put on programs in other high schools in the neighboring towns where they have been very well received.

The quartette entered the district contest, but had no competition and was sent directly to the state finals at Lansing. They competed against many other schools, some larger, and some smaller, and did very well, but failed to place among the first three in the state.

Omooso High School Band

For the past three years the school has maintained a steadily improving band. Mr. Champion, high school music master until last year, organized and trained them in their first steps. When Mr. Champion was called to a better position, Mr. Heyer of Saginaw supervised the band along with other musical organizations. Under his direction, though a new method is hard to follow, the band progressed and played at a great many of our scholastic activities. On the football field their brisk strains gave spirit to the games and pep to the crowd, and their effect was the same in the basketball gymnasium. Then in early spring our band was the first one out to parade the street and campus putting new life in us all and creating an enthusiastic atmosphere for baseball.

We expected a great display of musical talent in various functions throughout the season, but due to the fact that Mr. Heyer resigned just before spring vacation, the band this year has been unable to enter the state tournament or to give a concert as they have given other years to raise funds for new instruments and costumes. This was rather an unfortunate handicap for them, but a new director, Mr. Spears, filled the vacancy so capably that the band is once again making progress.

A new feature is added to the honors of the band this year for they will be given "letters", small minor "Os". Our band is certainly an ambitious group, for on Thursday, May 10, they held an assembly and presented an entertaining program at a very small admission fee. The proceeds were to be used to defray the expenses of purchasing the letters; all which was left went to the band treasury for other necessary details. The letters will be given on the merit system to the boys who measure up to the requirements. It is very necessary that the band members appear at all rehearsals and business meetings. A boy shows his interest by making his conduct an example for others, and by his attitude. Therefore, all these things give Mr. Spears a general impression of the worthiness of a band member to wear his high school's honorary symbol. An assembly for the presentation of the letters was given and the boys receiving them were duly proud of the recognition.

The band has played on several occasions this season also. At the dedication of the new high school their opening and closing selections added the proper touch of solemnity. They also participated in the Decoration Day parade.

Not only the Senior Class but the entire high school wishes to express their appreciation to those who have organized and sponsored an interest in music and its development.

Orchestra

Mr. C. Spears.....Director
 Harriet Spiess.....Accompanist

Due to the able direction of Mr. Heyer and the co-operation of all of its members, the orchestra has enjoyed a very successful year.

Many new and difficult compositions were studied and played at various events during the school year, such as assemblies, banquets, Parent-Teacher meetings and the Junior Play.

Among the selections studied were: "Boieldieu's Averture", "Calif of Bagdad", and "Intermezzo" from "L'arlesienne Suite".

Harriett Spiess has accompanied the organization during the year.

Since the resignation of Mr. Heyer the orchestra has been under the direction of Mr. Spears, who, in the course of only a few months, has created a very noticeable improvement in this musical organization.

The outlook for 1930 is optimistic, inasmuch as several students broadened by two years of orchestra work, are returning.

Girls' Glee Club

Mr. Johnson.....Director

Evelyn Hart.....Accompanist

This year marks the third anniversary of the Girls' Glee Club. This musical organization was formed by Mr. Champion two years ago and exceptional progress was made in its growth.

The formation of the club has created an interest in vocal work among high school girls and this year the regular classes began under the direction of Mr. Heyer. Although only a few public appearances were made, the members received valuable training.

The club continued, in the absence of Mr. Heyer, under the leadership of the able Mr. Johnson, the organizer and leader of the Community Chorus.

The club has been an asset to the school and worthy of much honor for its success.

"So This Is London"

Leading Parts

Jane Rayen.....	Elinor
Howard Coy.....	Junior

Then the big night came! ! ! On December 17, 1928, the Senior Class presented "So This Is London", by Arthur Goodrich, at the Capitol Theatre. The crowds poured in from a rainy street but soon forgot their discomforts in the charming story of the play.

Junior, a young American, meets Elinor, the daughter of an old English family, on shipboard, but it doesn't all end so pleasantly. They realize that their parents will never agree to their marriage and are helplessly trying to see a way out. Lady Ducksworth, a friend of the Beauchamps, finds her part here and tries to help the young couple by bringing their families to an understanding. After a struggle which brings many hot tempered remarks from Elinor's father and many sarcastic yet grin-stretching retorts from Mr. Draper, the barrier between the two nations is broken and a happy ending is staged at a dinner party in the home of Lady Duckworth.

The Senior Class owes much to the kind and successful directing of Miss Grace Renwick.

Much credit is due to Filbert Hartshorn and his efficient staff for their successful co-operation.

"Tilly of Bloomsbury"

Leading Parts

Dorothy Goodrich.....	Tilly
Hugh Stuart.....	Dick

On May 15, 1929, the Junior Class presented "Tilly of Bloomsbury", by Ian Hay, as their annual class play.

The play is a modern English comedy picturing the adversities of inter-class romance. Tilly, the heroine, is a common girl of very poor parents and her "on top of a bus" acquaintance and "on the top of a bus" engagement to Richard Mainwaring are a source of exasperation to his aristocratic family. Tilly's attempts to "fight" for Dick by giving a tea for his family and trying to make her family appear quite as aristocratic as his, has a disastrous ending.

Mr. Stillbottle, a bill collector who had been changed to temporary butler, comically makes an awful mess of things. Tilly, seeing the farce of it all, explains the situation truthfully, breaks her engagement as hopeless, and goes back to work. Dick Mainwaring isn't defeated in spite of their difference and at the advice of a dear friend he "holds her tight" till, like a girl, she gives in, and the curtain drops on a happy reuniting.

Most sincere appreciation is extended to Miss Grace Renwick of the English department by the Junior Class for her untiring efforts in directing their play.

"Sauce For The Goslings"

One of the plays which the Girls' Civic League presented was "Sauce for the Goslings", a one-act play very cleverly presented in the Emerson auditorium, April 12, 1929.

The play is a comedy of "slang", and the characters Bob and Elizabeth, just home from college, are the first aggressors. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor (Mike Mansor and Genevieve Lawrence) are very much disturbed with the habits of their children and have tried every gentle way to break them of it. And it isn't long before they hit upon a new but rather daring plan. Bob and Elizabeth (Don Hughes and Helen Orth) have invited and are rather enthusiastic at the prospect of having James Ward, an old college friend of Bob's (Lyle Hodges), for a visit to their home. The Taylors and grandmother decide that they will use all the slang they know when he comes in order to try and embarrass the children so completely that it will be the end of their indulgence.

The plan works beautifully as well as humorously. Bob is almost ashamed of his parents on the appointed evening and not until then does he realize how awful slang is. Elizabeth is terribly upset at the behavior of her parents and tries to tell them on the side to please stop. Before the end of the evening both children are distressed and humiliated so they promise never to use slang again.

The Girls' Civic League sincerely appreciate the interest and direction which Miss Margaret Jones has given the play.

“Not a Man in the House”

Mrs. Timothy Bings.....	Thedabelle Sutton
Miss Lucy Rider.....	Harriett Spiess
Aunt Belinda.....	Lucille Tillotson
Kate.....	Eleanor Townsend
Jessie Ray.....	Inez Reynolds

This play under the direction of Mrs. Braddock and Mrs. Gebhart was given at the Emerson school April 12. It was an American play taking place in a small town.

Mrs. Bing's husband has just died and they have just recently moved into another town. She is pleased with the house because she planned it. She declares that no man shall enter it. Both Lucy, her sister, and Jessie, her niece who is visiting them, do not agree with her because they have gentlemen friends who might call. Aunt Belinda sides in with them. Kate has a wonderful second cousin on the police force. With all four working against Mrs. Bings they succeed in getting a man in the house. A reporter walks in and a policeman is sent for. Later Mrs. Bings is told that both Jessie's and Lucy's gentlemen friends are in the parlor. Nothing was left to do but admit them all.

Blue Triangle Plays

The plays, "Neighbors" and "Joint Owners In Spain", were given by the members of the Blue Triangle Club, December 3rd, at the Emerson school.

The first of the two plays, "Joint Owners in Spain", was directed by Miss Margaret Jones.

The cast included: Jean Friegel, Ruth Loomis, Barbara Owens, Jacqueline Britten.

The second play, "Neighbors", was directed by Miss Treva Zinn.

The cast included: Eloise Dimmick, Florence Sutter, Betty Crane, Rowena Carr, Evelyn Wallace, Ethelyn Cartwright, Laura Jane Zimmerman, Belva Day.

"Neighbors" was later presented at the Dramatic meeting of the Woman's Club.

Much credit is due Miss Jones and Miss Zinn for their untiring efforts.

Social Science Club

Kenneth Campbell	President
James Miner	Vice-President
Jean Friegel	Secretary
Muriel Green	Treasurer

The Social Science Club is really a new experiment in this high school. Its chief aim is to bring about sociability and also to give the students who are interested in the subject a chance to enlarge their knowledge of it. It has done a great deal towards sociability and hopes to do more in the future towards the actual study of social science.

The only qualification for membership is that one be interested in the organization and willing to take part in its activities.

The club meets every other Wednesday at three-twenty after school. The meeting is divided into business and social departments. The program usually consists of the reading of an entertaining article or an interesting speech on the subject of social science.

The club is to give a play and has talked of a party. It hopes to carry out both plans in the near future.

There are about thirty-five active members in the club.

The club is greatly indebted to Mr. de Boom and Mr. Hood, the advisors, for their indispensable services.

Lyceum Club

In the spring of 1926, under the leadership of Miss Phyllis Turnbull, former teacher of Latin and Public Speaking in the Owosso High School, a public speaking club was formed having four charter members.

This club was called the Lyceum Club, and since that time this club has played an important part in the organizations of the High School. It has at the present time twenty-five members.

Its purpose is "To promote a deeper interest in public speaking in the High School." Any person having at least a "C" average, and giving an acceptable three minute speech before the club is welcome to become a member.

The meetings have been most interesting and helpful, several one-act plays have been given. A Valentine Party and a banquet were both greatly enjoyed by the members, the latter being an annual vent for the club. In addition, the club has financed the debating team for the last three years, and has been a great help to that organization.

To Miss Grace Renwick, the adviser, the club wishes to extend its most sincere appreciation for her aid and suggestions.

Girl's Civic League

Helen Orth	President
Bernice Roe	Vice President
Jean Friegel	Secretary
Barbara Gene Owens	Treasurer

Every girl in this high school is a member of this organization which strives to establish service, loyalty, and friendliness.

The program of each meeting portrays the thought of some great quotation. The general topic this year is health and education, in other words, physical and mental development. Interesting speakers on both subjects have been obtained to address the assembly. We have not confined ourselves to these topics, however.

Representatives were sent from the group to a "Girl and Boy Relationship" conference held in Grand Ledge. An assembly was called March 22 for the report of the convention. This convention has been held every year but this is the first time the League has sent representatives.

To Mrs. Gebhart and our active members, much credit is due for this successful year.

The purpose of the club is to develop a more sympathetic feeling for and understanding of the French people and France as a whole, and at the same time to understand ourselves better by comparing civilizations, that is, customs, habits, etc.

A general plan for meetings, which were held every two weeks, follows:

1. Roll Call, answered by something relating to that certain meeting.
2. Business Meeting.
3. Two reports.
4. A song or poem, for variety.
5. A game.

“Le Petit Journal”, to which each member subscribes, is referred to in making reports and answering roll call.

This year, in co-operation with the French Study Club, a University Extension Lecture Course was brought to Owosso. There were five numbers, two from the speech department, and three from the French department.

Much credit is due Miss Schipper, the advisor, and Arlene Post, president, for the effort they have put forth in making the club a success.

"Stained glass windows make the light
Like songs of beauty from the sun.
Life could shine through us like that—
You and me and everyone."

"Cathedrals" was the theme chosen for this year's program. Our purpose has been, "To cultivate the best that is in me that it may shine forth through the rose window of my soul for the people beyond the wall."

The club is conducted on a co-operative basis and our chief aim is to let each girl enter into part of every meeting. Sophomore, Junior and Senior girls are eligible in the club and visitors are always welcome.

The various parts of the Cathedral were used as titles for the meetings. We entered the Cathedral through "The Portico". This was our first meeting and was composed of camp and conference reports. "Candles That Burn in the Twilight", was our ceremonial and fifteen girls were taken into the club as new members. One of our largest parties of the year was "Altar Boys", when the boys were our guests. Dancing and cards provided the entertainment. Of course, a program would not be complete without a few discussion meetings, such as, "A Mixed Congregation" or interracial and "Towers" when we view the world. The meetings of the year closed with the Senior Farewell, "Leaving the Cathedral".

Science Club

Charles Wilkins.....President
 Earl Moss.....Vice President
 Ed Rivlan.....Secretary and Treasurer

We admire the courage of our Science Club. Being unable to successfully organize two years ago did not stop them from a renewed attempt last year. With persevering struggle and a genuine purpose they have steadily grown stronger.

The purpose of the club is to give every boy interested in some field of science the opportunity to have apparatus and companionship which will help his development in science.

The club has about twenty active members, and visitors are cordially welcomed for this shows interest and the possibility of new members.

No requirements are made for membership other than that one be interested and willing to contribute to the program of scientific experiments. Meetings are held every other Wednesday with their efficient advisor, Mr. Moore.

TOP ROW: Leo Woodard, Clifford Mallory, Lloyd Walker, Clarence Van Brocklin, Ansel Spitler, Howard Davis, Lauren Hilgendorf, Winston Reynolds, Wilbur Kline, Welton Reaser, Erwin Thompson.
 SECOND ROW: Edwin Franks, Harold Phillips, Alex Dreuth, Harold Baker, Duane Beebe, Alvin Harmon, Earl Lytle, Max Joy, Herbert De Peal.
 THIRD ROW: Ronald Carr, LaVern Sawyer, Cloise Azelton, Robert Scofield, Lawrence Snider, Leonard Saska, Robert Inch, Robert Kingsland, Gerald Wildermuth.
 BOTTOM ROW: Norman Maurer, Raymond Doyle, Milton Kaufman, Arnold Saska, Earl Skinner, Edgar Bilow, Jack Jason, LaVern Luchenbill, and Mr. V. O. Braun, Instructor.

Agricultural Club

OFFICERS

James Basso.....President
 Don Hughes.....Vice President
 Arthur Wendt.....Secretary and Treasurer

The Agricultural Club of the Owosso High School is an organization composed of boys in the agricultural department. This club consists of about seventy members, each member pursuing at least one course in agriculture. All students enrolled in the agricultural department are eligible for membership in the Agricultural Club, and the membership is nearly one hundred per cent.

The aims of this club are to sponsor programs or activities relating to the department and to form a closer relationship and promote a better spirit between the agricultural department and the other departments of the school.

Each year this club makes several trips, one of which is a visit to Michigan State College during Farmers' Week. This club also plans and sponsors Owosso's participation in the County and State Judging contests held during the school year.

TOP ROW: Coyla Loynez, Delta Hutchinson, Edwin Hahn, Irene Helt, June Wilkinson.

Cicero Club

Bernice Roe.....President

Julius Silverman.....Vice President

Patty Hume.....Secretary-Treasurer

The Cicero Club was organized in 1927, with the purpose of striving for a better knowledge of the lives, habits, and language of the Romans. The membership has been open to any student who has had two years of Latin.

The meetings have been held once a month. Reports on Roman homes, furniture, and dress have proved most interesting and instructive to the Latin students.

Certain Roman games have been introduced to the Club which have proved to be very pleasant.

The playlets have produced Roman life and have added a touch of Roman atmosphere to the meetings.

Due to the assistance of Miss Golliher, the Club advisor, the programs have fulfilled to a large extent the purpose of the Club.

TOP ROW: Ansel Spitler, Archie Wrigley, Mr. Braun, Instructor.

Judging Team

The agricultural judging teams of the Owosso High School have been very successful in County and State Judging Contests since judging competition has been sponsored by the agricultural schools throughout Michigan. They have had the honor of winning more judging contests than any other agricultural department in the state.

The first state judging contests were held in 1924. That year Owosso High School won the contest and was proclaimed the State Championship Judging Team. The following year Mr. Braun's stock judging team won the state contests and received the Walter A. French Trophy Cup for stock judging.

In 1926, Mr. Braun again coached the Owosso Poultry Judging Team to a State Championship, and in 1927 they again won the state contest. No other school in Michigan has yet accomplished this feat—the winning of two successive State Championships. The poultry cup is now permanently owned by Owosso which is the only school in the state to have the honor of winning a cup three times.

The grain and potato judging teams have won several county judging contests, and the agricultural singing team won state championship in 1927.

TOP ROW: Mrs. Weatherby, Virginia Spiess, Evadyne Spiess, Murlin Dynes, Helen Tobey, Thelma Glander, Miss Goodes.
 BOTTOM ROW: Josephine Millis, Pauline Drury, Edith Steggal, Helen Cardwell, Muriel Green, Rose Sasek, Rita Miller.

District Contest.....April 27, 1929

State Contest.....May, 25, 1929

The Commercial Team gained highest honors in the district contest held at St. Johns April 27. They made first place in every event of typing and shorthand which they entered.

Contestants entered were from St. Louis, Durand, Corunna, St. Johns and Ithaca. However, Owosso, with a score of 72, sailed ahead; its nearest rival, St. Louis, followed with a score of 29. Owosso entered students in the contests for first year typing, won by Edith Steggall with 47 words per minute; for second year typing, won by Josephine Millis with 66 words per minute; for accuracy typing, won by Muriel Green with 71 words per minute and 5 errors. In team typing, Owosso won first place with a score of 60 word per minute.

Our shorthand contestants carried off honors equally as high, first year shorthand being won by Pauline Drury with 4 errors; second year shorthand by Rita Miller with only 2 errors; advanced shorthand by Rose Sasek at 120 words per minute and 15 errors. In second year shorthand with dictation at 90 words a minute, Josephine Millis won first place, transcribing at a rate of twenty words a minute.

Much credit for this success is due Mrs. Weatherby, instructor.

Charles E. Wilkins

The first high school boy to receive the honor of having his name inscribed on the plaque that was presented by the University of Michigan Club, is Charles E. Wilkins.

The plaque is designed to bear the name, each year, of a high school student selected by the Principal, instructors, and a Committee from the University Club. The person chosen must be outstanding in leadership, scholarship, and athletics. Charles complies with all these requirements and well deserves the distinction given him.

He is the President of the 1929 graduating class and stands high up among the upper one-third of his class. He is also President of the Science Club and a member of the Athletic Council. In athletic ability he has qualified for the honor with two years on the varsity football eleven, two years on the basketball team, and one year in baseball. Wilkins was an expert end on the football team and played center position on the basketball team. He is a three-letter man, earning two in basketball and one in football.

Features

Senior Prom

The Seniors held their annual revelry April 26, 1929, in the Armory. The hall was elaborately decorated in a Dutch theme which was said to give one of the most beautiful effects ever presented in High School history. White and blue were the colors used.

Walking down a short hall the guests were confronted by a "29" monogram cleverly lighted. They then found arches leading to lobbies on either side. Arches also enclosed the dance floor leaving the artistically arranged lobbies under the balconies. A solid ceiling of rolling white and blue clouds hung above, sheltering the scene of Dutch windmill and the old wharf which was the orchestra pit. The stage showed rays receding to the class emblem. On the horizon were rows of real tulips in various colors.

Guests were received by Superintendent and Mrs. E. J. Willman, Principal and Mrs. E. A. Courmyer, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hume, and Mr. and Mrs. John Detwiler, patrons and patronesses.

A most unusual and lovely grand march was led by Charles Wilkins, class president, and Miss Virginia Friegel. They were followed by Kenneth Clark, class treasurer and Miss Josephine Walters. The march ended by forming an "O". Appropriate programs in the form of little Dutch shoes were given at the door. Necklaces, some crystal, some blue, and others amber, were given as favors.

The entire affair was a social as well as financial success for the Class of '29.

Senior Folly Day

Remarketable demonstration given of Senior potency and importance. The veztriz that zunk in mid-ocean wuz revived and zunk again on the platform in full view of the zeniors, becauz no zeniors saw it the firz time it zunk. Affair went over big; ship went under quick. All the people rezcued were zaved. Those who drowned were alzo zaved later.

On plaze where zship zunk Ralphuz Duckuz gave the grazzy Honolulu Coo-coo. Then Ed Alley Proz, a great author, told thrilling tale about little Tom Thumb to Donibus Whoz whoos too little to underzstand it but he luffed anyway.

Then great shriek Rhubarb Vaselino took girl riding in great squeek car and made Mary Pick A. Ford to ride home in.

Such fulliz bizznizz! Al zeniors had a good chance to act natural, and all zeniors acted much naturaller than they had the chance to.

In the end somebody got married in the old fashioned way—which meanz uncompanionately—by Miltinzky Realzipper, the great pastor, minister, preacher and theologen. Then events ceazed and everybody stood right still and waited for everybody else to go out.

Assemblies

September 28—Peppy assembly held to boost Arthur Hill game. Band, under leadership of Mr. Heyer, made its first appearance. Several vocal solos by Mr. Heyer were enjoyed and yells were led by Joe Patrick. Meeting concluded with High School song.

October 5—Short pep meeting for the Owosso High-Howell game was held.

October 12—Snappy pep meeting, boosting the O. H. S.-Saginaw Eastern game. Program opened by band. Meeting in charge of V. O. Braun who presented our football heroes. The high school song concluded the assembly.

October 26—An Owossonian chapel was held to bring out the importance of the High School paper. This was conveyed to the students by means of a short skit entitled "It Must Be Good". After this a subscription contest was explained to the student body. Mr. Willman concluded this chapel by telling of his interest and how student interest could be created in the Owossonian.

October 29—This assembly was sponsored by the Michigan State Health Department. A short but interesting story was told by an Indian girl who explained some interesting facts about her family. This chapel was given to prove to the students the importance of obeying all health rules concerning themselves and their fellow students.

November 21—Assembly held in which Mayor Seegmiller urged the students to attend the football banquet sponsored by U. of M. Club. Also told a few facts about Fielding H. Yost and Michigan.

November 16—Pep meeting for Flint Northern game. Band played several selections followed by yells led by our old favorite Joe Patrick. Mr. Cournyer and Mr. Willman made a few remarks about the position we held with class "A" schools and our chance to win Saturday.

December 5—Interesting playlet given by seniors presenting their annual class play, "So This Is London".

Assemblies

December 10—Short assembly. A representation of the Thrift Incorporation complimented the high school for the good record in banking and urged that it be continued for the good name of the school.

December 11—Football awards. Mr. Haupt presented "Rs" to the reserve football squad. Mr. Brooks presented "Os" to members of the Varsity and told of honorable mention received from Mr. Remington by several of the team.

December 21—Christmas assembly was held in charge of Girls' Civic League. Mr. Moore opened program with prayer. Carols were sung and Christmas spirit prevailed through the assembly.

February 22—A very patriotic assembly was held. It opened by all joining in singing "America the Beautiful", and "Battle Hymn of the Republic", followed by three numbers by the Double Quartette. Rev. Rex O. Holman gave an interesting talk on Washington. "Blue and Gold" was sung and assembly was dismissed.

February 27—This was the Spic chapel. Several members of staff gave talks concerning the Spic and subscriptions were taken. Assembly closed with everyone enthusiastic.

February 28—Jack Miner, the famous naturalist and conservationist favored the school with a talk on birds. This was in keeping with the contest of choosing state bird.

March 26—A stirring assembly was held when our basketball team was presented their "Os". Several appropriate numbers were rendered by the band and after several hearty yells the assembly closed with singing of the "Blue and Gold".

Girl Civic League advertised their plays "Sauce for the Goslings" and "Not a Man in the House". First time boys have been in the League's plays.

Parties

On November 23 the Sophomores entertained a large crowd with dancing and cards. The music was furnished by Lee White's orchestra.

Unique decorations of pumpkins and corn stalks around the corners gave an appropriate fall atmosphere. The initials of the High School were placed across the side windows in blue and gold, making a striking result.

Sandwiches and punch were served later. The chaperones were Mrs. Gebhart, Miss Bussey, and Mr. Cournyer.

JUNIOR ALL CLASS PARTY

The Juniors, feeling their pride a bit hurt at not having given the second party of the year, got busy and gave the third, to uphold their prestige. It went over big December 7 in the Emerson school auditorium, about 250 students being present. Besides dancing, cards also were a source of amusement. Paul Ferris' orchestra and a good waxed floor inspired the dancing.

Punch, doughnuts, and apples were served by Junior girls.

Mr. Haupt, faculty advisor, and Mr. Cournyer, principal, acted as chaperones.

Well, well, the Sophs have given another party! Oh! but this was different, all decorated in blue and orange. It made a very effective setting. There was a large crowd, the same as before, and dancing and cards were enjoyed.

Paul Ferris and his "Seven Moderns" made even those who couldn't, dance. Punch and wafers kept everyone refreshed. The chaperones were Miss Bussey, class advisor, and Mr. and Mrs. Cournyer.

Oh, yes, dear friends, this party was given March 22 in the Emerson auditorium.

Parties

ALL CLASS PRE-PROM

The Seniors, supposing the inexperienced would appreciate a little dance practice before the Prom, gave a pre-prom party for this purpose on April 13, 1929. It was a real party, too. Orange "tang" (with oranges in it) kept everyone feeling in high spirits all evening. The orchestra was one picked up by our old friend Ken Sanderson and they played just like Dan Lerbers' symphony combination.

Everyone had a good time including the chaperones who were Mr. Cournyer, class advisor, Mr. Braun, and Mr. Haupt.

FRESHMAN ALL CLASS PARTY

We all thought the Freshmen would strike forth in their colors before the season was over and sure enough it all happened May 24 at the Emerson "dance hall".

An exceedingly large crowd turned out to make the evening most enjoyable. Dancing, refreshments, and cards were the main features of the party.

SENIOR ALL CLASS PARTY

Feeling responsible for the welfare of shy little newcomers, the Seniors gave the first all class party of the season on October 2, in the Emerson auditorium to initiate the Freshmen into the social functions of the year.

The party was well attended and dancing and cards were the diversions offered. Many of our young guests, (we have found out since they are not so shy) did not dance, but I'm sure they enjoyed the refreshments served later in the evening.

Music was furnished by Lee White's "Serenaders", and the chaperones for the party were the class advisor, Mr. Cournyer, Mr. Haupt, and Mr. Braun.

"The Blue and the Gold"

In the Shiawasse valley
In the middle west,
Stands a school of many virtues
Ranked among the best.
In athletics as in studies
Victorious gates unfold.
May each loyal son be worthy
Of the Blue and the Gold.

We hail the conquering heroes
With our cheers and song,
We will cheer them to the heavens
With voices loud and strong.
As they struggle through to victory
With hearts so true and bold,
While fighting for Owosso,
And the Blue and the Gold.

O. H. S., our Alma Mater,
Loved by old and young,
May thy name be duly honored,
And thy praise be sung.
In the future we'll remember
The golden days of old,
As Alumni we'll do honor
To the Blue and the Gold.

Athletics

Earl Brooks
Coach

Owosso High certainly appreciates the ability of a coach who can develop winning teams.

Coach Brooks has done for Owosso High what very few coaches could accomplish. He was the one who changed our team from just a mediocre type to one of championship calibre. Every year he turns out better teams and we as Seniors wish him success in years to come.

Coach Brooks was well aided by an assistant who understands all types of games from start to finish.

Assistant Coach Chester Haupt should be given a large portion of the credit for the high quality of the teams Owosso turned out this year.

"Chet" had the coaching ability and used it.

Chester Haupt

Football

Howard Doran
Captain

The football season of 1928, under the guidance of Coach Brooks and Assistant Haupt, was indeed a season to be long remembered as the best the Owosso Gridders have had for a number of years.

If the last quarter of the last game could be erased from history, our team would have gone through the season without a defeat. Clean playing and the will to win were the big factors that helped our team stop every enemy but Flint Northern, who won by the score of 6-0. After holding two strong teams, Arthur Hill and Saginaw Eastern, to a scoreless decision the first of the season, the Blue and Gold had easy going until it met Flint Northern in the last game of the season.

The team won a place in the State by sharing the Class B championship with Traverse City and Fordson, also by placing three men on Remington's All-State team. Mansor was elected as center on the third team while Hodges and Hughes drew honorable mention as tackle and back, respectively.

Charles Williams

Arthur Hill Game

Bob Hahn

Arthur Hill. The Blue and Gold battled Arthur Hill to a scoreless result, thus indicating on the basis of the score that the two elevens were closely matched. It would be hard to convince the many Owosso fans that their team did not deserve to win the tussle. The final count was 0-0.

Howell. Owosso romped over their second foe by white-washing Howell to an easy 30-0 shut out.

Mike Mansor

Howell Game

Arthur Wendt

Lauren Hilgendorf

Saginaw Eastern Game

Don Hughes

Saginaw Eastern. Saginaw Eastern was our next foe, furnishing the first opposition on the home gridiron. The Blue and Gold outplayed the upstaters, but with no better draw than another scoreless, tie decision.

Midland. The Blue and Gold gridders kept their goal line uncrossed by defeating Midland High. The team failed to show the football uncovered in their previous games by losing several chances to score as the wet field interfered. The result was 12-0.

Kenneth Elliott

Midland Game

Alex Dreuth

Charles Wilkins

Ypsilanti Game

Raymond Doyle

Ypsilanti. Ypsilanti Central, Class B tilt claimants of lower Michigan, fell next before the Blue and Gold gridders. It was the first time either team had been scored upon this season. The game was played at Ypsilanti to the score of 12-6.

Indians. The Mt. Pleasant Indians came to Owosso for the next game of the local's schedule, and it was in this game that Owosso uncovered more smart football than had been seen here for a long time. The strong Indian team yielded to the count of 38-12.

Harold Mc Call

Indian Game

St. Johns Game

Duane Beebe

St. Johns. Holding St. Johns at safe distance, but lacking usual power on offense when several good scoring chances were let slip, the Blue and Gold came through by winning the Annual Armistice Day engagement to a 6-0 victory.

Flint. Owosso lost their last game in a sea of mud to Flint Northern. The invaders slipped over score late in the game, and as a result, the Blue and Gold's record of no defeats for the season was shattered by the narrow margin of a single touchdown. However, Owosso ended her successful season with the score 6-0 in favor of Flint.

Basketball

Don Hughes
 Captain

Owosso High is proud of the way which our boys fought from what seemed to be a losing basketball team to end up one of the best in the State. After losing the first five games it seemed a very gloomy aspect but fight and determination to show that they could tuck away a game started a winning streak and it lasted the remainder of the season till we were defeated by Mt. Pleasant in the Regional Tournament.

Owosso won from St. Johns for the Championship of the district but through some hard luck fell to Mt. Pleasant, in the Regional meet, in what seemed rather a fluke game. At the end of the first half the Blue and Gold basketekers lead with count of 10-2 but Mt. Pleasant came through to win the tussle to the score of 16-15.

Captain Hughes showed skill in controlling the team and was a big factor in making it a success. The team as a whole was alert, fast, sure-shooting.

Baseball

Ralph Dickie
 Captain

Starting with nearly a new team Coach Brooks' baseball squad at the present time have made a very good showing by winning two out of three starts. Coach Brooks' greatest problem has been to find a suitable battery, as both pitcher and catcher were lost by graduation.

The only veterans available for this year's squad were Hilgendorf, Dreuth, Hughes, Mansor and Dickie. Many brilliant prospects have been uncovered both as batterymen, infielders and outfielders and next year will see many of this year's players back in uniform, which should be a decided advantage.

As the Spic now goes to press we wish the '29 baseball team further success on the diamond.

The tennis enthusiasm was renewed again this season and several of last year's veterans turned out for the team. The team is going strong although several games with larger schools were lost.

Captain Link is the "star" of the team, while all the others show exceptional ability.

Mr. Montgomery again is in charge of the boys and much credit is due him for his three years of capable coaching.

Waiter: "Sorry, sir, we're not responsible for the morals of our food."

Jane Rayen is so dumb she thinks a mushroom is a bridal suite.

A toast to our parents and Profs.—"May they never meet!"

Mr. Detwiler: "Jeanette, how many times do you imagine Don has kissed you "

Jeanette: "So far, I haven't had time to imagine at all."

Ikie: "What are your hopes for the future?"

Doc. Soules: "I have none just now. Tomorrow is my girl's birthday and I'm worrying about the present."

Miss Jones: "What is ignorance?"

Charles Morgan: "Ignorance is when you don't know anything and somebody finds it out."

Miss Renwick: "Do you know any of Shakespeare's quotations?"

Arlene Post: "No. I never knew he was a stock broker."

Jeanette: "The mice would go crazy over him."

Elly: "How do you mean?"

Jeanette: "He's such a big cheese."

Saska: "Work for my dad."

Skinner: "You used an extra word."

Jim. L.: "How would you like riding in a patrol wagon?"

John P.: "Oh, it would do in a pinch."

Mrs. Parvin: "You shouldn't whistle at the table."

Charles: "Wasn't. I was whistling at the dag."

Mr. de Boom: "What's the difference between climate and weather?"

Mike: "Climate, my boy, is weather which has become a habit."

Betty V. D.: "Ken actually blushed when he kissed me."

Mary F.: "You shouldn't apply your rouge so thickly."

Mr. Kaufman: "Now, my son, tell me why I punished you."

Milton: "That's it, you pounded the daylight out of me and now you don't know why you did it."

Ken Campbell: "I could dance on like this forever."

V. Friegel: "Oh, don't be a pessimist. You'll improve."

Bob Hahn: "Yes, dad, I'm a big gun at school."

Mr. Hahn: "Well, then, why don't I hear better reports?"

Bud Bonsor: "How come the street light's so pale?"

Don Hughes: "Oh, it was out all night."

Mr. Haupt: "I want to get a diamond ring, platinum, if you please."

Clerk: "Certainly, sir, let me show you our combination sets of three pieces—engagement, wedding and teething rings at 10% discount."

Miss Noonon: "You told me to file these letters."

Mr. Cournyer: "Yes."

Miss Noonon: "Well, I was just thinking that it would be easier to trim 'em with a pair of scissors."

Mrs. Cournyer: "Wake up, Ed., wake up! There's a burglar in the house."

Mr. Cournyer: "Well, I've no revolver. You go and look daggers at him."

Miss Golliher: "What is the Latin word for 'one'?"

Fresh: "Uno."

Miss Golliher: "Well, maybe I do, but I want you to tell me."

Mr. de Boom: "When was Washington born?"

Bob Grant: "I don't know, I was absent from the class that day."

Sophomore: "Are all teachers bookworms?"

Second Dumbell: "All but geometry teachers."

First Dumbell: "What are they?"

Second Dumbell: "Angle worms."

Mr. Hood: "Who made the first cotton gin?"

Bud Bonsor: "Do they make it from cotton now?"

Hildengorf: "Why have you turned your cows in the orchard?"

Saska: "Because I would like some apple butter".

Correct this sentence: I had a blind date and she was good looking.

Miss Woodard: "We'll take the life of Longfellow tomorrow so come prepared".

Mr. Braun is my teacher, I shall not want another.

He maketh me to fatigue my poor brain; he leadeth me to his desk. He restoreth my gum; he canneth me from Farm Economics class, for his namesake.

Yea, though I walk through the halls in silence, I fear him, for he watcheth me; his ideals and assignments terrifieth me.

I am prepared for bawling outs in the presence of my classmates. I anointeth my books with study; my marks runneth down.

Surely, if he teacheth me all the days of my life, I shall dwell in the house of the feeble-minded forever.

The last joke: "Freshmen".
